

Carter awaits nomination as party opens convention

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter, his hand freed by political strength that an incumbent president might envy, is wrapping up his vice presidential interviews as he waits triumphantly in the wings for tonight's opening of the Democratic National Convention.

The 37th Democratic National Convention, staged at Madison Square Garden, is expected to nominate Carter for the presidency Wednesday night by an overwhelming vote amid a harmony that contrasts to divisive party fights in 1968 over the Vietnam war and 1972 over party reform.

Sens. Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai Stevenson III of Ill.

linos, meeting Carter today, are the last of seven finalists for the vice presidential nomination, all from Capitol Hill, to be interviewed.

Carter said Sunday he has three names at the top of his list but said he is keeping an open mind until the interviews are over.

The peanut farmer and former Georgia governor who dazzled the political establishment with his long-shot run to the nomination said he would wait until after his own nomination before revealing his choice of a running mate.

With 19 primary victories to his credit and The Associated Press delegate poll showing him with 1,653 votes, well over the 1,505 needed for nomination, Carter is wrapping up a campaign that is a sharp contrast to the close and bitter Republican nomination battle. A month ahead of the GOP convention, President Ford leads conservative challenger Ronald Reagan by only a handful of votes.

The vice presidential selection has emerged as the major unresolved issue at the convention in the absence of a race for the top of the ticket and the calm of a party platform so secure that it's already printed and bound and in the hands of each delegate.

Carter's personal public opinion pollster, Patrick Caddell, has concluded that no particular vice presidential prospect would appreciably help or hurt Carter's own chances of winning the fall election, campaign aides said.

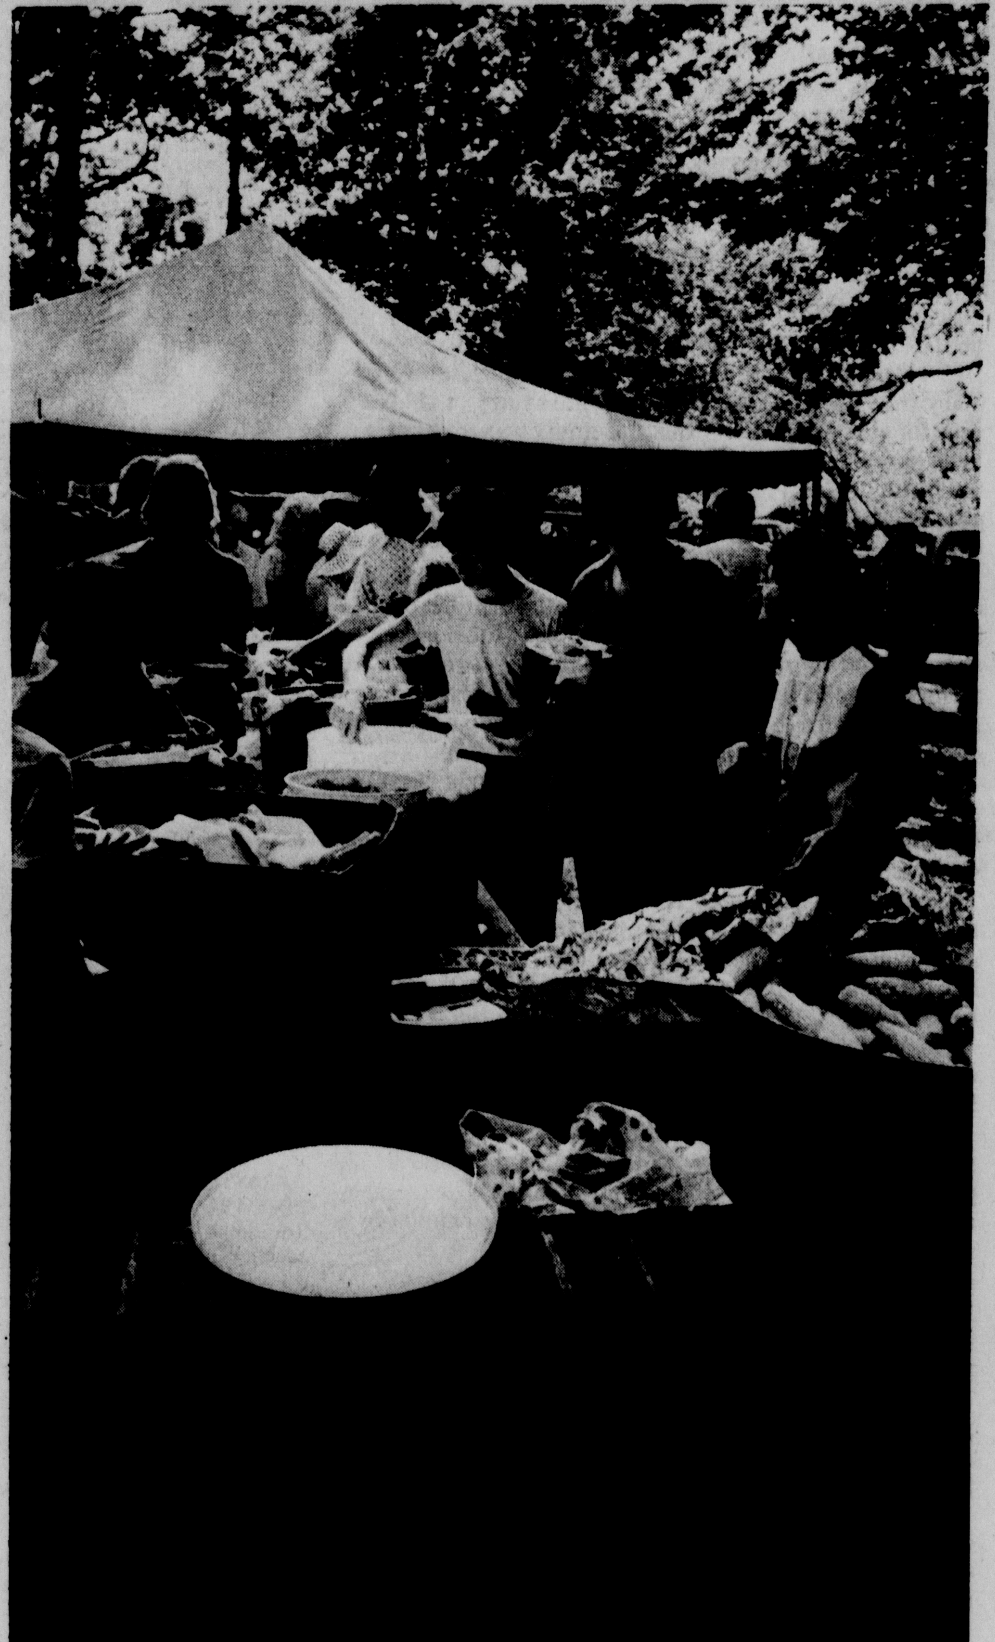

The Carter staff said Caddell's polls show that the strength and diversity of Carter's own appeal make the No. 2 spot virtually irrelevant. The only possible trouble spot, they say, is that he not make an especially bad choice which might develop into a major scandal or embarrassment.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, the party's 1972 nominee, suffered a setback when it was discovered that his running mate, Sen. Thomas A. Eagleton of Missouri, had undergone electric shock treatment for depression. Eagleton was dropped from the ticket after that disclosure.

Carter revealed Sunday that he is taking unprecedented steps to keep that sort of thing from happening to him. He said he has requested financial and medical information from everyone on his list of possible running mates.

The accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Co. was engaged to go over the financial data, including tax returns, Carter said, and "they have found nothing to cause me concern."

2,000 at rally

Some estimates reported over 2,000 people attending the political rally in Scott City, Saturday. Held for Warren Hearnes, candidate for U.S. Senator; John Dennis, candidate for state senator; Fred De Field, candidate for state representative; and George Schaaf, candidate for attorney general; the gathering featured free food, lots of hand shaking and a speech by Hearnes. Garrison trial set for Oct. 18 in Bloomfield

BLOOMFIELD—The week of Oct. 18-22 has been set for the trial of Dr. Norman A. Garrison of Corinth, Miss., who is charged with the first degree murder of his former wife, Lee Ann Garrison, on Sept. 8, 1974.

The date was set by Rex A. Henson, Circuit Judge of Butler County, who was designated special judge by Circuit Judge Flake McHaney of Kennett during arraignment proceedings last week.

Officials do not expect the trial to take more than a week, and they are guessing it will probably take less, either four or five days.

The state's information has 83 witnesses endorsed and they could be called during the trial, but do not have to be.

The trial date is sooner than had been expected, since the docket is already full, but Circuit Clerk Charles Corbin said that on the week the trial will be held, all other cases have been set aside.

This is in line with the comment that McHaney made last week that he could clear the docket on whatever dates were available to the defense and the state.

McHaney dsdisqualified himself after a change of judge motion was filed by defense attorneys, because he had presided over matters involving Garrison in the past, specifically his divorce from the late Mrs. Garrison.

The Garrisons separated in January, 1974—eight months before her death—and in June agreed to a divorce settlement that called for payment of $100,000 in alimony to Mrs. Garrison, in addition to child support payments.

Still pending is a motion filed by Garrison's attorneys to reduce the doctor's $75,000 bond, which McHaney set last month, increasing it from $25,000. Garrison is free on bond.

He retired in October of 1973 from the Missouri State Highway Patrol, where he held the rank of sergeant.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Marie Harris; two sons, Bill Harris of Miami, Fla., and Mike Harris of Debray, Fla.; two daughters, Mrs. Beverly Vogel of Harlingen, Tex., and Mrs. Vikki Lynn Voliva of San Antonio, Tex., and three grandsons.

State Supreme Court rules

Fetus not 'person' under law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An unborn fetus is not a "person" within the meaning of Missouri's wrongful death statute until there has been a live birth, the state Supreme Court ruled today.

"We hold that wrongful death action may not be maintained for the death of an unborn child," the court said in a unanimous opinion written by Judge Lawrence Holman. "We think the legislature in enacting the original act and subsequent revisions did not intend to create an action for the death of a fetus never born alive," the opinion said.

The ruling came in a case involving a St. Louis couple, who sought damages as a result of the death of their unborn child following an auto accident.

The child of Bobbie Jo and Gerald Holdner was stillborn at St. John's Mercy Medical Center March 21, 1975 a few hours after Mrs. Holdner's car collided with another driven by Gary Hardin of St. Louis.

Mrs. Holdner was eight months pregnant at the time.

The couple filed a three-count suit against Hardin following the accident, contending that Hardin's negligent operation of the car resulted in the death of the "fetal child." The first count sought a recovery for the injuries to Mrs. Holdner, the second sought a recovery by Mr. Holdner for loss of consortium and the third a recovery by both parents for the death of the unborn child.

Hardin's attorneys sought the dismissal of the third count in St. Louis Circuit Court, and the trial judge said he would dismiss Hardin's motion unless overruled by a higher court. The state Supreme Court issued a provisional rule in January suspending dismissal of the motion.

The court noted that no Missouri cases were applicable to the Hardin case, as regards the application of the wrongful death statute.

That law was enacted in 1855 and says that whenever the death of a person shall be caused by a wrongful act, neglect or default of another, and the act, neglect or default would have provided the wronged individual with a claim for damages had he or she remained alive, then the person causing the death shall be liable for damages.

The court noted that decisions in similar cases in other states have gone both ways.

"In view of the common law rule that an unborn fetus was not a 'person' we think if there had been an intention to create such an action it would have been specifically so state," the court said.

It also noted that recent U.S.

Supreme Court decisions support the belief that an unborn fetus is not a person, and cited the 1973 decision in which the high court said "the unborn have never been recognized in the law as persons in the whole sense."

Judge Holman noted that the Holdners' lawyers argued that

Ugandan raid called dangerous

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Mexico told the United Nations today that Israel's commando rescue of more than 100 hostages from Uganda a week ago creates "precedents of incalculable danger for all civilized coexistence."

In a letter to the president of the Security Council, Mexican Ambassador Roberto de Rosenzweig Diaz denounced the Israeli action as "a flagrant violation" of the U.N. Charter and "universally accepted principles of international law."

Mexico was subjected to a tourist boycott by American Jewish organizations last winter after voting for a U.N. General Assembly resolution equating Zionism, the movement for a Jewish national homeland, with racism.

The boycott was called off in March after Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa went to Israel to explain the vote and President Luis Echeverria invited a group of American Jewish leaders to Mexico to discuss the issue. Rabasa resigned during the controversy.

The Mexican Hotel Association estimated its members had 100,000 cancellations during the boycott and lost at least $9 million.

Mexico's letter on the Ugandan rescue mission was made public as the Security Council prepared to begin hearing a parade of Third World countries calling for condemnation of Israel.

When the council session began, the United States and Britain proposed a resolution that "condemns hijacking and all other acts which threaten the lives of passengers and crews" and "calls upon all states to take every necessary measure to prevent and punish all such terrorist acts."

In an effort to win support from the African and Third World countries that had called the meeting to condemn Israel for the Uganda raid, the draft resolution also "reaffirms the need to respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of all states" — without mentioning Israel by name.

The draft was the culmination of efforts by the United States and other Western states to expand the raid debate to a broader condemnation of hijacking and terrorism in general. Previous such efforts have been blocked by Arab states.

The Americans were reported to have drafted a general condemnation of international terrorism and a suggestion that Israel compensate Uganda for See No. 2 Page 10

THREE LITTLE WORDS: Of, By, And For

In response to the accusation by a Washington secretary that she was paid the handsome salary of $26,000 a year for carnal functions, this statement was made:

"When a man is holding public office, the greatest thing they can say about him is that he's a man of his people. Then when they find out he is, that's where the trouble starts."

It struck us that there is something awfully wrong, not only with the statement itself, but with the attitude behind it. First, it would appear to indicate that "the peepul" — either all of them or a majority of them — are given to fornication and barnyard morals. It strikes us that any man with such a low and terribly erroneous opinion of the community a large has no place in public office.

If a man cannot count among his friends and associates a vast majority who lead upright and decent lives, then he is not only traveling with the wrong company — he is out of touch with grass-roots America.

Secondly, the response fails to recognize that ours is not only a government of the people — and we mean good people — it is also a government by the people and for the people. And in such a government, the people have every right to expect and indeed to demand that their elected representatives reflect the wishes, the desire and the needs of not just the dregs in our society, but the very best in our society.

Some have tried to alibi that "what a man does in his private life should not be held against him insofar as his political office is concerned." But how can a man carry out his political responsibilities if his "personal" life is morally unsound or debased?

"The council and myself discussed this quite frequently. In time of financial crisis you have to look at the department's efficiency to the city."

The position of assistant administrator will no longer be filled.

It stands to reason that Sikeston and other cities will undergo the same scrutiny by the elected commission in reducing administrative costs, too.

JUDICIAL REFORM IN MISSOURI

Extensive changes will be made in Missouri's judicial system as the result of legislation approved by the 1976 General Assembly.

One major proposal, which would bring sweeping changes in the courts, will be subject to approval by Missouri voters later this year. This rewriting of the judicial article in the Missouri Constitution was needed to help update this state's courts. It received the bulk of the attention during the legislative session.

Significant alterations were made in other aspects of the justice system, however. Some details:

Magistrate courts — Their jurisdiction would be expanded. Circuit courts could assign to them (and some probate judges) dissolution of marriage cases that are uncontested, motions that are not contested on child custody matters, name changes, applications for hardship driving privileges, juvenile cases in counties under 70,000 population, uncontested real estate title matters and uncontested proceedings for approval of settlement of suits involving persons under 18 years old.

Further, the bill allows contested civil cases to be assigned to magistrates if the parties and the judges agree. The monetary jurisdiction was raised to $5000 in all parts to the state; it is now $2000 and $3500, depending on the size of the county in which the courts are located. The Supreme Court was granted rule-making authority over these courts.

Small claims courts — These jurisdictions are new to Missouri. They will be presided over by magistrates in cases not exceeding $500. Litigants may appear without lawyers although lawyers will be permitted. Rules of evidence will not be used in an attempt to have informal proceedings. No juries will be used.

Public defenders — The present law, enacted in 1972, was extended to provide free legal counsel for indigents accused of misdemeanors in which a jail sentence is possible and for juveniles. The original law called for legal aid in felony cases. The 1976 measure establishes a seven-member commission to administer the program and appoint defenders. Operation of the venture had been mainly the responsibility of the Supreme Court.

The bill adds full-time defenders in more judicial circuits and authorizes representation of indigent prisoners at the Correctional Center for Women and Tipton and the Training School for Boys at Booneville. The number of assistant defenders is increased.

The considerable detail is necessary here to show the extent of the changes in these various aspects of the justice system. More changes were made by these cover the major areas.

If the proposed constitutional amendment is approved by voters — and it has merit — Missouri will have taken a large step toward modernizing its courts. A few months ago supporters of reform were pessimistic. The recent record of the General Assembly on the courts had not been impressive.

That performance was reversed in the 1976 session. The people of Missouri and their courts will be the better for it if the amendments is approved.

OVER THE CLIFF

Add to the list of deficiencies in Tennessee's criminal justice system the inhumane void in the law dealing with the criminally insane.

Two justices of the state Supreme Court, Joe Henry and William H. D. Fones, likened it to the ancient practice of throwing mental defectives over cliffs.

Their observation was contained in dissenting opinions in a 3-to-2 court decision upholding the second-degree murder conviction of 1973 of George S. Edwards of Memphis. He was sentenced to 10 years.

Edwards admitted shooting his sister but claimed insanity as a defense. Even evidence produced by the prosecution upheld that claim.

sincerity, a political purpose behind the Billy Graham sermonettes. One Democratic professional, who has come to know Carter, told us: "He's tough as a warehouse rat."

But there was a note of admiration in the old pro's voice. For despite the ambiguities and the remoteness, Carter also offers the Democrats a new hope. They see in him an unexpected leader possessing political skills unseen since the great architect of Democratic supremacy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, burst into American politics.

Instead of mean and elusive, they see Carter as tough and prudent. They see a tactician who outplanned, outmaneuvered, outlegged and outlasted successive waves of opponents, a strategist who won his victories in a way that made possible the unifying of the party and the creation of an electoral coalition of historic significance.

These hopefuls feel that Carter, by his aloofness from the old Democratic powers and panaceas, has given the party a needed facelift in the nick of time. Had the Democrats been caught in a traditional conservative vs. liberal contest, it is suggested, they figured to take a shellacking.

But the advent of Carter has blurred the party's vulnerability without surrendering its basic goals, has held together the old constituencies while ushering in new ones. Reconciled southerners and evangelical Christians — groups which only yesterday were rather wary of the party of Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern — are attracted to Carter.

To many, Carter's campaign as a Southerner who embraced the memory of Martin Luther King Jr., and Carter's crushing but gentle defeat of George Wallace in the South, constituted a political masterpiece. They believe it has, without sacrifice of party principles, saved the South for the Democratic party.

There is another aspiration, half-defined, floating around Madison Square Garden. The nomination victory, won essentially without obligation to the old power centers and special interest groups, opens up a chance for Carter to become a truly national leader, a no-sayer to the predators and parasites, a spokesman for the unorganized and reticent.

There is a dawning hope among the converging Democrats that Jimmy Carter, by the direct link to the people he forged in 20 primaries, by his reaffirmation of submerged but potent values, by defeating without estranging his opponents, by burying the old rancors and recreating his party as a truly national instrument, is laying the basis for the restoration of the moral authority of the American government.

Those who know Carter say he is fully aware of his opportunity to revive the flagging faith in the American system, to end the national deadlock and to rescue the people from the mire of cynicism.

If he should be elected, he has told associates, he would go into the White House as a man of simplicity, a man who believes in God and isn't afraid to say so. He would try to bring trust and integrity back to the White House, he has said.

Maybe all this is just a Democratic pipe dream, but maybe it isn't.

Copyright, 1976, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The jury, however, was faced with an impossible decision: Either turn Edwards free or sentence him to prison.

In Tennessee, there is no middle ground. This is the only state in the nation which does not have procedures for treating criminal defendants who are found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Defendants like Edwards are put away in the state prison system, which has very little in the way of psychiatric services and the likelihood is that they are returned to society after serving their sentences in worse condition than when they went in.

The majority of the justices observed that there should not be a "system of trial by psychiatrists." That is true, but neither should there be a system of trial which is inconsistent with modern understanding of the human mind.

Henry and Fones urged that the General Assembly adopt a new system which would protect the public but insure that "the unfortunate victims of mental disease are dealt with in a humane manner."

We join in that recommendation.

Some May Die: Inside story of militant hospital workers' crippling of Convention City health services

NEW YORK — So they hoisted an arch, electrically screaming over a rag jungle street, "Welcome Democrats." And there was dancing in the gutters. And where masters in their pinnacles were told to keep their prostitutes off the long West Side avenues.

And delegates wondered was this trip necessary. And some 10,000 news people clawed for copy — that's because they are chained to the lobbies and caucus rooms and "the Garden," which really isn't the garden but upstairs over a railroad depot.

But the real story, the grim tableau of our times is uptown. There thousands of health service workers picket the mostly church and temple-supported voluntary private non-profit clinics and medical centers. It is a strike similar to that of 1973 when some 20 patients died of traumatic impact on being shifted, according to a city report.

The city health commissioner charges this is an "inhuman and barbaric" strike by the followers of the Santa Claus-bearded Leon Davis, a tumultuous, old-fashioned, hit-and-holler militant labor leader. His union is the controversial District 1199, which has forayed as far south as Charleston, S.C., and thrust into New England and to the West.

When it was said that some of the 15,000 patients in the massive hospital complex, the world's biggest, will die, Davis, whose National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees demands a wage increase in the shape of a Cost of Living Allowance (COLA), retorted:

"If somebody dies you'll have to ask the hospital management why they did not agree to a peaceful way of settling the issue."

Why didn't management take a labor-oriented fact-finding board's recommendation for a COLA increase? Because the non-profit affiliates of the League of Voluntary Hospitals — such as Presbyterian, Mount Sinai, St. Clare, St. Luke's, etc., are losing $183 million this year.

Because there is no more additional money for those voluntary hospitals, many of which face bankruptcy in their effort to provide this megalopolis with the health care needed to avoid the plagues which could easily devastate it.

Because there is a partial rollback, imposed by what passes for a state legislature, in Medicaid reimbursements to the voluntary hospitals. This will cost the league's non-profit health institutions an additional $120 million in 1976.

Because this will have a parallel effect on Blue Cross payments.

Add to all this the gargantuan gouging of available Medicaid money by the ripoff specialists, the ineligible, the crooked doctors and vendors and scores of medical mills. Hundreds of millions of dollars, perhaps as much as $800 million in this city alone, are wasted or stolen each year.

What good is it, then, to read the convention resolutions piously pleading for aid to the deserving poor — if few really attempt to slow the stealing and many ignore the threat of permanent closing of hospitals (some of which are on the convention — emergency telephone list)?

No one has yet reckoned how the League of Voluntary Hospitals affiliates can get up the $58 million a year in COLA increases Leon Davis' people demand. Coolly, Davis says Gov. Hugh Carey must find the funds. But there isn't any more money.

Carey's now getting the heat from the strike. In turn he's been putting the heat on his budget director. In turn the latter cuts and cuts so he can tell his chief we now can go to the security-buying market and tell them New York State bonds and other notes are a good risk.

And down below the public and the patients, the sick and the sick at heart over being bled by taxes, are caught in the middle.

It's a cruel cycle. Most of the 40,000 strikers are black and Puerto Rican. They're militant. For years they've been listening to their union leaders' oratory. Always Davis has delivered the money, pay increases, more holidays, longer vacations, shorter hours, strong grievance machinery, a modified closed shop.

How? Because always the governor of this state has delivered. And it did seem in previous contract go-rounds there has been only one governor. Right. Nelson Rockefeller. He always delivered.

Well, now Hugh Carey would like to deliver. Like all political leaders, why not? But there just isn't any money. So some hospitals eventually will shut permanently. The black workers will find they've gained little. They've had upward mobility. But now where? Joblessness? That just isn't any more money to deliver.

Little of all this seeps into the national convention. Big-state, urban-oriented delegates don't want to rock the boat. Others don't really care. Get it over with. On to Washington.

THREE LITTLE WORDS: Of, By, And For

In response to the accusation by a Washington secretary that she was paid the handsome salary of $26,000 a year for carnal functions, this statement was made:

"When a man is holding public office, the greatest thing they can say about him is that he's a man of his people. Then when they find out he is, that's where the trouble starts."

It struck us that there is something awfully wrong, not only with the statement itself, but with the attitude behind it. First, it would appear to indicate that "the peepul" — either all of them or a majority of them — are given to fornication and barnyard morals. It strikes us that any man with such a low and terribly erroneous opinion of the community a large has no place in public office.

If a man cannot count among his friends and associates a vast majority who lead upright and decent lives, then he is not only traveling with the wrong company — he is out of touch with grass-roots America.

Secondly, the response fails to recognize that ours is not only a government of the people — and we mean good people — it is also a government by the people and for the people. And in such a government, the people have every right to expect and indeed to demand that their elected representatives reflect the wishes, the desire and the needs of not just the dregs in our society, but the very best in our society.

Some have tried to alibi that "what a man does in his private life should not be held against him insofar as his political office is concerned." But how can a man carry out his political responsibilities if his "personal" life is morally unsound or debased?

The position of assistant administrator will no longer be filled.

Ester Grunehagen, Anaheim, Calif., landed at the Wilmington airport at 5:25 p.m. (EDT) Saturday, minutes ahead of a plane piloted by Jessie Wimmers, Phoenix, Ariz., and Wilma Sawatski, Wichita, Kan.

Third to finish was the plane piloted by Barbara Ellis Goetz, Fair Oaks, Calif., and Geraldine Mickelsen, Sacramento.

When weather conditions cleared at mid-afternoon Sunday at least 49 planes were able to fly out of Lubbock, Texas, enroute to Oklahoma City.

Other planes were scheduled to land for the night at such stops as Little Rock, Ark., Nashville, and Parkersburg, W. Va.

Local Girl Scout is selected for event

GRAND FORKS, N.D. — Julia Cowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cowell of 218 E. Kathleen has been chosen to be among 185 Girl Scouts from 40 states who will be participating in MOVE 'EM OUT, a Girl Scout National Wider Opportunity, sponsored by the Pine to Prairie Girl Scout Council, Grand Forks, N.D. Julia was chosen from among 400 applicants to be part of the MOVE 'EM OUT wagon train which will be traveling from Jamestown, N.D., to Fort Totten, N.D., July 15-27, 1976, a distance of approximately 98 miles. There will also be one participant from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, making the event international in nature.

Julia Cowell

Participants will be reliving the lives of pioneers as they travel across the rolling prairies of North Dakota in Conestoga wagons, on horseback, and on foot. Girls will take part in such pioneer activities as quilting, embroidery, weavings, candle making, soapmaking, and making homemade ice cream. Participants will also be able to try milking cows and shearing sheep.

A variety of guest speakers are scheduled, covering such topics as North Dakota history and geography, and Indian lore and culture. There will also be a group of old time fiddlers performing, and the opportunity for girls to learn ethnic style folk dancing. The "Trail Boss" will give girls instruction in the psychology of horsemanship, and-wagon construction and safety.

The intent is to make the trail ride as authentic as possible, and many of the hardships which were encountered by pioneer wagon trains will also be evident in the MOVE 'EM OUT wagon train. There will not be facilities for an excess of water to accompany the ride, so bathing will be limited, with the exception being when the wagon train passes lakes and girls will be able to swim.

All cooking will be done over campfires, with girls helping with food preparation, and at least one of the meals will include homemade bread made on the trail. As the wagon train nears Fort Totten, an authentic Indian meal will be prepared for the participants.

Each of the campsites will be named for Pine to Prairies' Hidden Heroines, the women being honored for their contributions to Girl Scouting through the special Bicentennial program endorsed by the Girl Scouts of the U.S., and they will be invited to the evening campfire ceremonies at each site.

The final highlight of the ride will be the inclusion of the wagon train in the Fort Totten days parade, and the opportunity for girls to attend the Pow Wow, international dance competition, and the Fort Totten Rodeo.

MOVE 'EM OUT has been approved by the North Dakota Bicentennial Commission, and it will be featured the July issue of AMERICAN GIRL magazines as part of their "Bicentennial Headlines," a cross-section of council activities being held in celebration of our nation's 200th birthday.

Baby and mother were reported healthy and resting comfortably.

The singer's spokesman said Cher told him "I'm so happy. He's beautiful and look at his lovely big feet."

Store frozen food in milk container

Inflation Fighter

DEAR POLLY — To save on buying containers for freezing foods, I wash and keep all empty waxed milk containers. After preparing food, I let it cool and then put in a carton and close tightly with masking tape. With a magic marker I write the name of the food and the date on the carton before putting it in the freezer. Once food is frozen, the containers can be stacked sideways or upright.

Also gallon plastic milk containers can be filled with water and frozen. This gives you plenty of ice for blanching foods for freezing or for extra ice to go in an ice chest. Silt the sides with a knife to get the block of ice out. Also, these plastic cartons can be cut in half and used for feeding or watering animals. —LOUISE.

DEAR POLLY — I wonder why grocery stores do not put a container near the entrance where coupons not wanted by some customers could be put. They could be used by others who use that particular brand. Some people just cannot afford to buy the newspapers to get the coupons. —W.W.

DEAR POLLY — My friends and I all clip "cents off" coupons from papers and magazines. We use the ones we want and then put the rest in a cigar box for the others to go through and take what they want. One may use instant coffee and another only fresh and so on. This way no coupons are wasted. —M.M.

DEAR POLLY — By my kitchen sink I keep a glass bottle with a shaker top, such as garlic salt or coarse ground pepper comes in, full of washing detergent. Whenever I have just a couple of glasses or a plate or two to wash, I shake a bit of this soap on them and wash, rather than filling the whole sink with water and soap. —MARCIA.

DEAR POLLY — Often I buy a bunch of celery that is too long to fit in my vegetable keeper. I cut off the ends and freeze in small containers to use later in soup or stuffing. I always dry the leaves and crumble them to use in many things. —RUTH D.

DEAR POLLY — My trick is for emergencies. When you make up and your hair looks as if it should have been shampooed the night before, try using powder on it. Lightly powder the hair and then brush it THOROUGHLY to remove all the powder (and the oil with it). Your hair will look good enough to make it through the day but be sure to wash it that night. This is somewhat the same as using dry shampoo but much less expensive. —DONNA.

DEAR POLLY — Whenever I buy an inferior food product, I write directly to the company whose address is on the label. I have always received prompt and courteous replies and usually coupons I can use to buy other products. Many times the coupons give me the products free of charge. —IRENE.

Polly will send you one of her "peachy" thank-you cards, ideal for framing or placing in your family scrapbook, if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write Polly's Pointers in care of this newspaper.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader tells Ann about the 'Other Man'

Dear Ann Landers: You recently had a column describing "The Other Woman." Why is it no one has ever described "The Other Man"? He is everywhere. Places you'd never suspect. I'd like to try my hand at it since I know him well. My wife knows him even better.

The Other Man is never seen in the morning, unshaven, with hair disheveled, in a ratty bathrobe, groping for his glasses. He appears in the morning (at work) or in the evening at a favorite rendezvous, looking perfectly groomed and very appealing.

The Other Man is not puttering around the house in torn trousers and an old shirt, trying to fix the plumbing or a garage door or a leak in the roof. No hint of perspiration from mowing the lawn or washing the car. He smells of cologne, toothpaste and aftershave.

The Other Man is always in a good mood. When he is with you he is out for a good time. He leaves his worries at home.

The Other Man invariably has a wife who has back trouble, is emotionally disturbed, frigid, and is a terrible nag. She doesn't understand him and talks of nothing but bills, unmanageable kids, bothersome relatives and things that are depressing. But he can't leave her to marry you — for awhile — because of financial circumstances, the children, his aging mother, his religion or his boss. His list of excuses is endless.

The Other Man doesn't care that he has caused his wife untold hours of anguish, that she has become a guilt-ridden nervous wreck, confused and unsure of herself. He doesn't give a thought to the fact that his children have heard rumors, or sense something is terribly wrong in the family. He is having a great big round ball — concerned only with himself, his pleasure and his ego, in spite of what he has led his playmate to believe. Do you know him? Look again. Watching It All From Up Close.

Dear Watching: Thank you for an insightful description. It's bound to hit a lot of people where they live — or at least visit.

Dear Ann Landers: The reader who signed himself "Tokyo" was wrong and you were right. He said the letter about the Japanese surgeon who sewed sheep hymens in deflowered virgins was a phony. The operation was, according to the original writer, called "maku saisel."

The Doubting Thomas pointed out to you (with a great deal of personal satisfaction) that there is no letter "i" in the Japanese alphabet. He said that was the tip-off.

I was born and raised in Japan and can vouch for the fact that the surgery described is not uncommon in that country. It is called "maku seisei" which means membrane regeneration. Obviously, someone made a typographical error. It should have been an "i" instead of an "l." So don't let the so-and-so grind you down, honey. —Nagasaki Nick

Dear Nick: I appreciate the vote of confidence as well as the research. You are right. It was indeed a typo, as several of my Japanese friends pointed out. (This column appears in the Asahi Evening News, an English-language paper in Tokyo.) Thanks for writing.

DESIGNS FOR THE YOUNG

Arranging a room for the young adult in the family? Lucky you, because today's young furniture is very much like today's young people—direct, comfortable, clean-lined and natural.

Cushy is what today's youth are calling the look—and feel—they like in upholstered pieces. This is the kind of chair or sofa that has a sink-in kind of comfort, where you can throw your legs over the arm while reading or sit upside down while talking on the phone. The furniture is worry-free because it will bounce back to its natural shape. Look for the comfortable, belted look that makes the furniture appear to be held together with straps and buckles. And look for the natural in upholstery fabrics—denims, real leather, unbleached cotton. Another important factor in the young look for today is exposed wood in upholstered pieces, with arms, legs and frames showing their use of the genuine hardwoods that are so strong.

The great trend toward natural materials shows up again in the broad use of genuine hardwoods in beds, chests, hutches, footlockers and trunks. Oak has a lot of fans among the young, with its wide grained, rustic look. Again, it is used with a belted look, where the belt may be a heavy leather with a brass buckle or padlock to keep things closed up. Or the look may be achieved by the use of a strip of brass worked into the wood itself. Brass studs may be used to complete the sturdy, masculine look.

The campaign look, with reinforced brass corners and inserted brass handles, is also popular with young people. Originally used by the British on their war campaigns, it smacks of the outdoors life so enjoyed by today's youth.

Beware the imitation wood grains that try so hard to resemble the genuine hardwoods like oak, maple, cherry, walnut, mahogany, pecan and ash. These are merely surface pictures that may be used over any material, and lack the depth and warmth of the real McCoy. Young people have an aversion to imitations, and want to steer clear of what they call examples of "a plastic society."

Any questions on hardwood? Write to Linda Forrest, Hardwood Institute, Suite 1920, 230 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Women in the news!

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Former Vice President Spiro Agnew was there, and so was Ronald Reagan, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. It was the wedding of Frank Sinatra and Barbara Marx, three months before the date they had announced.

Freeman Gosden, 77, who played Amos in the old "Amos 'n Andy" radio show, was best man at the ceremony Sunday.

Sinatra had previously said he and his bride would marry Oct. 10 in Beverly Hills, Calif.

HONG KONG (AP)—Rina Messinger of Israel has become her country's first Miss Universe, and has presented pageant officials with the problem of how to protect their new celebrity from terrorists.

The 20-year-old Miss Messinger wept with joy at her selection Sunday and displayed little concern over fears for her safety.

Women too late at check point in Powder Puff Derby

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Two airplanes in the 29th annual Powder Puff Derby have been disqualified for arriving at their Nashville checkpoint too late, officials say. Ninety-six aircraft had passed through Nashville by sunset Sunday in the cross-country race piloted by women. The flight began in Sacramento, Calif., and ends at Wilmington, Del. Sunset is the official end of each day's flight.

Disqualified Sunday was a plane piloted by Helen Wilke, Dallas, Tex., and Ann English, Houston, Tex., which arrived one minute, 10 seconds late and a plane piloted by Pat Freidman, Highland Park, Ill., which arrived one minute, 25 seconds behind schedule. Many of the aircraft were slowed by bad weather in the southwest United States, officials said.

Despite the weather, Derby officials say they expect the race to conclude by its scheduled deadline tonight.

Ester Grunehagen, Anaheim, Calif., landed at the Wilmington airport at 5:25 p.m. (EDT) Saturday, minutes ahead of a plane piloted by Jessie Wimmers, Phoenix, Ariz., and Wilma Sawatski, Wichita, Kan.

Detroit nip Royals 6-5

DETROIT (AP) — For Detroit's Rusty Staub, it was a fitting sendoff for Tuesday's appearance in the All-Star game.

And although Kansas City All-Star George Brett made it clear he deserves his All-Star nomination, his performance wasn't quite enough to give the Royals a clean sweep of their series with the Tigers.

Staub gave the Tigers a 6-5 victory in 12 innings—the longest game Detroit has played this year—with a two-out single that drove in catcher John Wockenfuss.

"It was good to get it over with," said Staub. "But it's a shame (Tiger starter Vern) Ruhl didn't get the win. He pitched well."

Ruhl pitched for 5 1/3 innings and allowed just one hit through the fifth. But he gave up two doubles in the sixth, was saddled with two runs and was relieved by Steve Grilli.

Ruhl fanned four and walked three.

Instead, the winner was Tiger lefthander relief ace John Hiller, who raised his record to 8-4 in his longest session of the year. The losing pitcher was Steve Mingori, now 3-1. Mingori was the third Royals pitcher and he held the Tigers scoreless for four innings until Staub ended the game.

Brett, the American League's starting All-Star third baseman, went 4-for-6, including two doubles, marking the fourth time this year he has collected that many hits in a game.

He was a key part of a 12th-inning threat when he doubled the inning's leadoff hitter, Amos Otis, to third. Hiller walked John Mayberry, loading the bases, but the Tigers saved the game when Aurelio Rodriguez threw out Otis at the plate and Cookie Rojas hit into an inning-ending double play.

The Royals overcame a 5-0 deficit with their two runs in the sixth and with three more in the seventh when they sent eight men to the plate. In the sixth, Dave Cowens doubled. Otis followed with a fly deep to right-center and right-fielder Staub ran to the wall, catching the ball backhanded and over his head.

But after the catch, Staub—who has received criticism for his play in the field—apparently forgot about the baserunner and held on to the ball, allowing Cowens to tag up and score.

"I had trouble pitching to lefthanders Brett and John (Mayberry) the whole game," said Hiller. "Everything I threw them was up for a strike. "But that's been the story of my whole year. I've even given up three home runs to lefthanders," said Hiller.

Canada refuses to yield to IOC pressure; Taiwan out

MONTREAL (AP) — The Olympic Games go on in Montreal, but the hopes of the Taiwanese and the spirit of the Olympic movement lie buried beneath a million bushels of Canadian wheat.

Canada's vast overseas trading interests are the underlying factor behind one of the worst crises in Olympic history.

The International Olympic Committee bowed on Sunday to the Canadian government which, under pressure from Peking, refused to allow Taiwan's athletes into the country because they would not change their official name or their flag.

It is the first time since the Games began in 1896 that a host country has shut out athletes recognized by the IOC. Unless there is a last-minute change of heart, the Taiwanese will be missing from Saturday's opening ceremony.

Behind Canada's decision, which was sprung on the IOC only six weeks ago, is its wheat exporting deal with Communist China, its biggest overseas trading partner. Selling wheat to Peking has brought new prosperity to farmers in Western Canada.

Communist China applied last year for Olympic recognition, but with the qualification that Taiwan be kicked out of the Games. The IOC took no immediate action. Peking then made a direct approach to Canada and demanded that Taiwanese athletes be shut out during the Olympics.

The Canadians met them halfway and said the Taiwanese would be allowed in only if they dropped the name of the Republic of China — the name by which their national Olympic committee is recognized by the IOC. The Taiwanese refused.

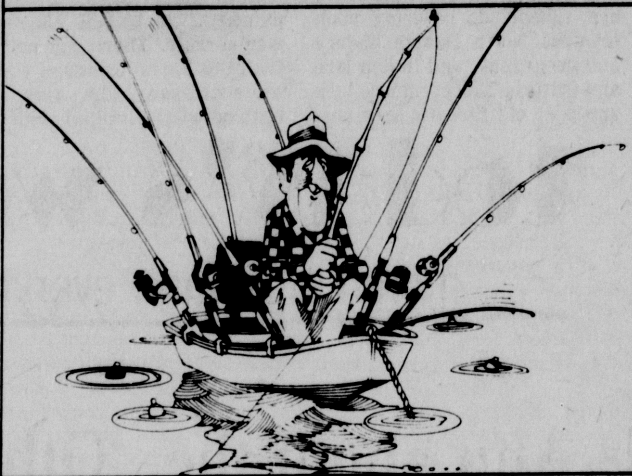

The IOC, which prides itself on being above politics and dealing only with sport, pleaded with Canada to honor the Olympic charter and grant free entry to the Taiwanese.

But Sunday night, Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, admitted he had failed. The Canadians refused to move one inch.

The IOC Executive Board suggested to the Taiwanese that for the sake of the Olympics and the 4,000 athletes expected here, they march in the opening parade behind the Olympic flag and a plaque bearing the name of the IOC. The Taiwanese rejected the idea and said they would pull out of the Olympics if they were forced into such conditions.

Killanin told a news conference: "The whole world is absolutely fed up with politicians interfering with sport."

Boating Tips...

FISHING AFLOAT

Any boat can be a mobile fishing platform. No special rigging or equipment is required, unless your preference is a fully-outfitted tournament-style bass boat. The fishing experts at Mercury outboards suggest that rod holders and a suitable anchor are basic accessories for most floating fishermen. An outboard or stern drive can add considerably to fishing fun. The boat can quickly maneuver to the hot spots, troll at leisure, or head upstream for a floating return. When you are through fishing for the day or just cruising, heed the reminder to steer wide of stationary fishermen. Lines will be strung out for many yards. Nautical laws specify that the boat is responsible for any damage caused by his wake.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — August A. Busch Jr., St. Louis Cardinals chairman of the board, said Sunday he has received fan pressure to fire Manager Red Schoendienst but that "I haven't made up my mind."

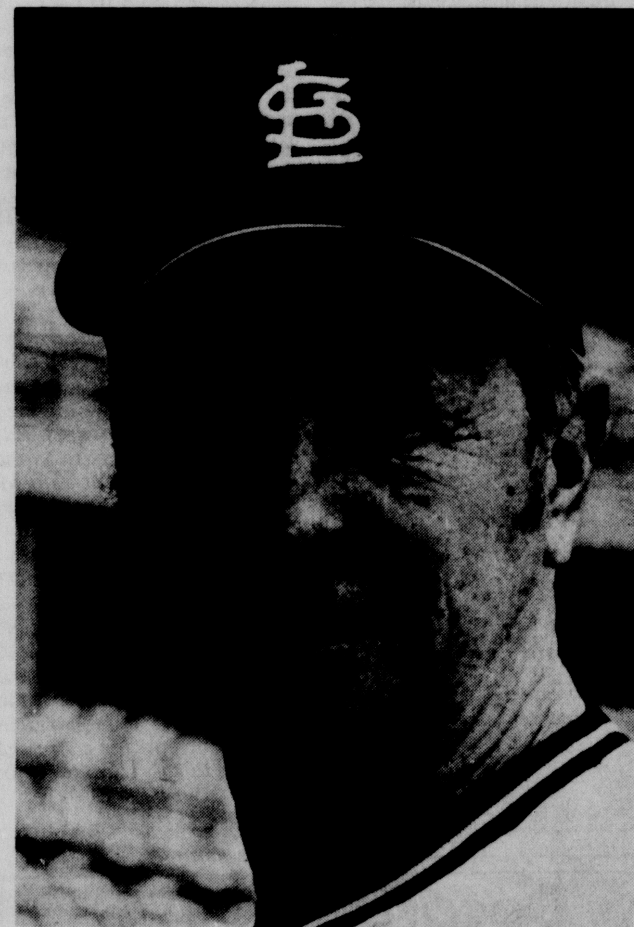

Busch, angered over recent developments in baseball, also said he has authorized an undisclosed Midwestern university to conduct a study on the club's future course.

The faltering Cardinals head into the All-Star recess 20½ games out of the National League East lead.

Busch acknowledged to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat that Schoendienst's status is up in the air.

"I can't comment at this time," he said. "We're going to study everything (on the club) at the end of the season. I've got a lot of mail that said I ought to get rid of Red. I haven't made up my mind."

Recent reserve clause rulings have angered Busch and, with the poor showing of his club, prompted commission of the study.

Satterfield and Hall win features

Jim Hall of Charleston and James Satterfield of Sikeston were the winners in the feature races at Sikeston Speedway Saturday night.

Hall, who failed to place in the first two heats, won the feature in the class B competition. Rich Ryder of Cape Girardeau headed a quartet of Cape drivers that finished in positions 2-5. They included Larry Stanfield, who won the first heat, and Ron Holshouser, who claimed the victory in the second heat.

Satterfield, who had finished third in the second preliminary heat in the late model division, raced to victory in the feature race. Bob Daniels of Matthews took second, followed by Bob Maddox of Gray Ridge, Jerry Cruse of Gray Ridge and Jim Brewer of Sikeston.

Bill Adamson of Fisk was the winner in the second heat, while Don Rushing of Matthews claimed victory in the first.

Deal goes 8 for 9 as Scott Co. Legion splits

SCOTT CITY — Sikeston's Dale Deal had a day of baseball Saturday that he is not likely to forget for awhile.

Deal, who starred for Sikeston's high school team which reached the finals of the state tournament in June and is playing for Scott County's American Legion team, had eight hits in nine trips to the plate as Scott County split a doubleheader with St. Peters. Scott County won the opener 3-0 behind the four-hit shutout pitching of another Sikestonian, Kevin Lasters, but St. Peters took the nightcap in extra innings, 10-9.

Deal, who is now hitting .362 to lead Scott County in that department, went four-for-four in the opener, scoring a run and driving in another. Scott County scored single runs in the first, fourth and fifth to support Lasters, who fanned seven and walked only one in the game. Ron Schlosser also had a pair of hits in the game.

Ironically, Lasters was the losing pitcher in the second game, being tagged for the winning runs in the top of the ninth. The score was tied 8-8 after the regulation seven innings, but St. Peters sent two runners across in the ninth. Scott County came through with a run in the bottom of the inning and had the tying run on, but shouldn't score him.

Scott County had scored seven runs in the first three innings, including a five-run third, and were ahead 7-0 going into the fifth, but St. Peters got to starter Jeff Torbett in the fifth for three runs and added five more during a big sixth inning to take the lead. A single run by Scott County in the bottom of the sixth forced the game into extra innings.

Deal blasted four hits in five trips in the second game, including a pair of doubles. He ripped a two-bagger leading off the eighth which might have given Scott County a chance to win, but was thrown out trying to stretch in into a triple.

Keith Campbell smacked three hits for Scott County and David Shell had a pair.

Scott County's record is now 11-5. Coach Ollie Anick's squad meets Flat River tomorrow night at Scott City.

Watkins fires another no-hitter

ORAN — John Watkins did his thing against his old teammate Bob Clark Saturday night, firing a no-hitter for Oran as they donned Moorman's Speed of Anna, Illinois, 4-0 in the second game of a softball double-header at Oran Saturday night. Oran had won the first game 10-1 as Robert outhurled Terry Clark.

Watkins fanned 19 hitters as he threw yet another no-hitter for the Oran team. Henry Dirnberger had a three-run homer in the sixth to give Watkins all the hitting support he needed.

Mark Amick blasted a three-run shot in the opener for Oran. Watkins and Clark played together ten years ago for the Cape Jets.

Watkins hurled again Sunday as Oran downed Benton 10-1 in the Semo League game. Watkins fanned thirteen and gave up two hits. Don Metz went three-for-four at the plate to prove the hitting support.

Rejuvenated Saints making move

Don't look now, but the Sikeston Saints are surging up through the Bi-State League standings with the ultimate goal being a league championship. The "Streakin' Saints" won their fourth consecutive league game, sixth win in a row over all, when they wrapped up the second game of Sunday's doubleheader against Herrin 9-1. Bob Blankenship pitched a four-hit shutout in the opener to win 11-0. With a league mark of 5-5, the Saint are just one game (in the loss column) behind first place Cape. The Capahas are 9-4.

The Saints recovery from a 1-5 start could be traced to a pitching staff that has improved from one of the league's worst, to among its best. Don Miller, the second-game starter, and Blankenship allowed the visitors just eight hits in the 14 innings of baseball. The first game of the nine-inning-seven-inning doubleheader was cut short by the ten-run rule.

Blankenship got plenty of hitting support in the opener. Loser Tim Bleyer was touched for ten runs before leaving in the fifth. Centerfielder Bruce Lawrence broke out of a hitting lapse with a bang, ripping a double and single and driving in three runs. Shortstop Grant Dambach as good for a long double and an even longer triple, driving in a couple of tallies. The Saints put the game on ice with a seven-run third inning, capitalizing on three walks and two errors by the tired Eagles from Illinois.

"We've played nearly every day the past week or so," said a Herrin player. "Ste. Genevieve beat us bad last (Saturday) night, and it's just hard to get up in this heat."

For the second time in two starts Saints hurler Don Miller worked on a hot, muggy afternoon. The hard-throwing righthander again fought off the adverse elements to pitch a strong game and notch his second win. This time he got more scoring support than he received in his 4-3 win over Anna, two weeks ago.

Designated-hitter Richard Blankenship was a last-minute substitution in the Sikeston lineup and manager Tom Masterson never regretted his choice. Blankenship, usually a pitcher, had two hits and a sacrifice fly and drove in four runs. Thirdsacker Rick Eisenbach had a

Fiedrych & Jones to start classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If ABC, televising the All-Star game, ever wants to add some zing to the coverage, it could hang a microphone around the neck of young Mark Fiedrych and tune in on the rookie pitcher's conversation with the baseball.

Fidrych, 9-2, with Detroit, will open for the American League in Tuesday night's 47th clash with the two leagues. He'll be opposed at the start by San Diego's sensational Randy Jones, who reached the All-Star break with a National League record 16 victories and only three losses.

Jones is just 26, but he's been around. He lost 22 games two years ago, but turned that around by winning 20 last season. The fans are familiar with the frizzy-haired left-hander.

But Fiedrych is a new act. A 21-year-old right-hander, he has captivated Detroit fans with his exuberance. When he works, he thinks nothing of going down on all fours to smooth out the pitcher's mound to his specifications. He cheers for his fielders and perhaps most important are his exhortations to the basebal.

Before he delivers the pitch, Fiedrych discusses direction and location with the basebal. No one except the Tiger rookie knows if the ball answers him.

Can the expected capacity crowd of 61,000, including President Ford, expect the usual antics from the rookie who is nicknamed "The Bird"?

"I hope I won't change," he said. "It'll be the same game."

Fidrych will be only the second rookie pitcher to start an All-Star Game. The only other one was Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators, who pitched the first two innings in what developed into a 9-4 AL victory in 1962.

Those were the days when the Americans still held the upper hand in All-Star competition.

Eagles win SEPSL tournament title

The Eagles charged from the loser's bracket to win first place in the Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League Tournament Sunday, downing Steward Steel 7-4 to claim the first place trophy.

The Eagles, who had won two games Saturday night to force the double-elimination tournament into Sunday's action, got a strong pitching performance from John Chessor, who hurled all three games.

The Eagles had defeated Bank of Sikeston 3-2 Saturday night in the first game to earn the right to move into the finals against previously undefeated Steward Steel. Terry Comstock's two-run single highlighted a three-run fifth inning that gave the Eagles all they needed.

In the game against Steward Steel, Jerry Taylor homered in the sixth inning as the Eagles claimed a 9-7 decision. Chessor outpitched Rick O'Donnell in that one, forcing the tournament into Sunday's final game.

Jim Sweet belted a three-run homer in the first inning as

Steward jumped out ahead 4-0. But the Eagles battled back to score one in the bottom of the first, one in the second, three in the fifth, one in the sixth and one in the seventh. Again, Chessor was the winning hurler and O'Donnell was the loser as the Eagles won it 7-4.

Dodgers explode in 7th to stop Cardinals 9-6

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Had Don Sutton known he would be pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers in their game Sunday with the St. Louis Cardinals, his pregame activities would have been considerably different.

But after all, Burt Hooton had the starting call and Sutton, a member of the starting rotation, had not appeared in relief in about five years.

So before the game, played in near-100-degree temperatures, Sutton ran 2 1/2 miles in the outfield and then rolled with some teammates in a game of "slip-and-slide" on the artificial playing surface, which had been wetted down to cool it off.

The tiring effects of the unusual warmup by the 31-year-old veteran failed to show when he was called into action in the seventh inning. He held the Cardinals to one hit, a pinch home run by Bake McBride, and was credited with a victory as the Dodgers rallied for a 9-6 triumph.

Sutton was one of six starting pitchers who saw action for both teams in the free-scoring game which the Dodgers won by scoring seven times in the seventh inning.

After returning to the dugout from the slip-and-slide game, Sutton said, Manager Walter Alton informed him that an appearance was possible.

"Walt asked me, 'How would you feel about pitching today?' I said, OK skip. What could you say?" Sutton related. "But you don't go running 2 1/2 miles before a game you're going to be pitching in."

Alston, who had relieved Hooton with another starter, Doug Rau, before bringing on Sutton, based his decision on the heat and the coming All-Star break.

"Sutton had three full days of rest and Rau was ready," Alston said. "With the heat, I didn't expect anyone to go nine. With the long All-Star break coming up, I thought it would be to his (Sutton's) benefit to stay in tune by going three."

The big blow in the Dodgers' seventh was a three-run homer by Reggie Smith, traded to the Dodgers by the Cardinals earlier this season.

Smith, who said he has "a lot of fond memories" of his playing days at Busch Stadium, didn't let sentimentality stand in the way of performance. He also hit home runs in each of the other two games of the series.

double and single and scored three time. Bruce Lawrence and the Saints' manager, Masterson, belted doubles.

Marty Hopkins was the loser for Herrin. The Eagles, residing in last place in the Bi-State League, have a 3-10 league mark. However, their overall record is 20-14. They also play in the Illinois Coal Belt League. The Saints, suffering from nine rainouts, are 7-5.

Sikeston will send Richard Blankenship against Ste. Genevieve in an 8 p.m. game there Wednesday night. Ste. Genevieve will then return the favor, coming to Sikeston for a makup game at eight next Saturday at V.F.W. Stadium.

The hard-throwing righthander again fought off the adverse elements to pitch a strong game and notch his second win. This time he got more scoring support than he received in his 4-3 win over Anna, two weeks ago.

Designated-hitter Richard Blankenship was a last-minute substitution in the Sikeston lineup and manager Tom Masterson never regretted his choice. Blankenship, usually a pitcher, had two hits and a sacrifice fly and drove in four runs. Thirdsacker Rick Eisenbach had a

Fiedrych & Jones to start classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — If ABC, televising the All-Star game, ever wants to add something to the coverage, it could hang a microphone around the neck of young Mark Fiedrych and tune in on the rookie pitcher's conversation with the baseball.

Fiedrych, 9-2 with Detroit, will open for the American League in Tuesday night's 47th clash with the two leagues. He'll be opposed at the start by San Diego's sensational Randy Jones, who reached the All-Star break with a National League record 16 victories and only three losses.

Jones is just 26, but he's been around. He lost 22 games two years ago, but turned that around by winning 20 last season. The fans are familiar with the frizzy-haired left-hander.

But Fiedrych is a new act. A 21-year-old right-hander, he has captivated Detroit fans with his exuberance. When he works, he thinks nothing of going down on all fours to smooth out the pitcher's mound to his specifications. He cheers for his fielders and perhaps most important are his exhortations to the baseball.

Before he delivers the pitch, Fiedrych discusses direction and location with the baseball. No one except the Tiger rookie knows if the ball answers him.

Can the expected capacity crowd of 61,000, including President Ford, expect the usual antics from the rookie who is nicknamed "The Bird"?

"I hope I won't change," he said. "It'll be the same game."

Fiedrych will be only the second rookie pitcher to start an All-Star Game. The only other one was Dave Stenhouse of the Washington Senators, who pitched the first two innings in what developed into a 9-4 AL victory in 1962.

Those were the days when the Americans still held the upper hand in All-Star competition.

Eagles win SEPSL tournament title

The Eagles charged from the loser's bracket to win first place in the Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball League Tournament Sunday, downing Steward Steel 7-4 to claim the first place trophy.

The Eagles, who had won two games Saturday night to force the double-elimination tournament into Sunday's action, got a strong pitching performance from John Chessor, who hurled all three games.

The Eagles had defeated Bank of Sikeston 3-2 Saturday night in the first game to earn the right to move into the finals against previously undefeated Steward Steel. Terry Comstock's two-run single highlighted a three-run fifth inning that gave the Eagles all they needed.

In the game against Steward Steel, Jerry Taylor homered in the sixth inning as the Eagles claimed a 9-7 decision. Chessor outpitched Rick O'Donnell in that one, forcing the tournament into Sunday's final game.

Jim Sweet belted a three-run homer in the first inning as

Steward jumped out ahead 4-0. But the Eagles battled back to score one in the bottom of the first, one in the second, three in the fifth, one in the sixth and one in the seventh. Again, Chessor was the winning hurler and O'Donnell was the loser as the Eagles won it 7-4.

Dodgers explode in 7th to stop Cardinals 9-6

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Had Don Sutton known he would be pitching for the Los Angeles Dodgers in their game Sunday with the St. Louis Cardinals, his pregame activities would have been considerably different.

But after all, Burt Hooton had the starting call and Sutton, a member of the starting rotation, had not appeared in relief in about five years.

So before the game, played in near-100-degree temperatures, Sutton ran 2 1/2 miles in the outfield and then rolled with some teammates in a game of "slip-and-slide" on the artificial playing surface, which had been wetted down to cool it off.

The tiring effects of the unusual warmup by the 31-year-old veteran failed to show when he was called into action in the seventh inning. He held the Cardinals to one hit, a pinch home run by Bake McBride, and was credited with a victory as the Dodgers rallied for a 9-6 triumph.

Sutton was one of six starting pitchers who saw action for both teams in the free-scoring game which the Dodgers won by scoring seven times in the seventh inning.

After returning to the dugout from the slip-and-slide game, Sutton said, Manager Walter Alton informed him that an appearance was possible.

"Walt asked me, 'How would you feel about pitching today?' I said, 'OK skip. What would you say?' Sutton related. 'But you don't go running 2 1/2 miles before a game you're going to be pitching in.'"

Alton, who had relieved Hooton with another starter, Doug Rau, before bringing on Sutton, based his decision on the heat and the coming All-Star break.

"Sutton had three full days of rest and Rau was ready," Alton said. "With the heat, I didn't expect anyone to go nine. With the long All-Star break coming up, I thought it would be to his (Sutton's) benefit to stay in tune by going three."

double and single and scored three time. Bruce Lawrence and the Saints' manager, Masterson, belted doubles.

Marty Hopkins was the loser for Herrin. The Eagles, residing in last place in the Bi-State League, have a 3-10 league mark. However, their overall record is 20-14. They also play in the Illinois Coal Belt League. The Saints, suffering from nine rainouts, are 7-5.

Sikeston will send Richard Blankenship against Ste. Genevieve in an 8 p.m. game there Wednesday night. Ste. Genevieve will then return the favor, coming to Sikeston for a makeup game at eight next Saturday at V.F.W. Stadium.

What's the law?

The case of the trouble nun

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Horace had a conscience, but it wasn't very quick. By the time it finally got around to telling Horace not to do something, it was usually too late.

After Horace broke a bottle over a friend's head, for example, his conscience told him he had done wrong and Horace dashed off to a nearby Catholic school, where he told a nun, who was his teacher, of his evil deed.

The nun, in turn, dashed off to the nearest police station to see what she could do to help Horace. Instead of being able to help him, however, the authorities insisted that she tell a grand jury everything Horace told her.

"I won't do it," insisted the harried nun. "Since a priest or minister can't be made to divulge the contents of a confession, neither can I. A nun is just as much a spiritual confidant as a priest or a minister."

"You're a teaching nun,"

responded the district attorney, "and you're not a priest or a minister. Consequently, no matter what your religious involvements may be with your students, you've got to tell all."

When the nun refused to do so, the district attorney took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the troubled nun to divulge what Horace had told her in confidence?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that state law does not afford a teaching nun the same privileges as a priest or minister in being able to refuse to divulge the contents of a confession made by a penitent. In fact, noted the judge, research into Catholic doctrine has failed to reveal any support for a nun to claim the privilege.

Mr. Charles Blanton, III
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

As chairman of the Sikeston Branch of the SEMO Diabetic Association and in behalf of the other officers and members, I want to take this opportunity to thank the good people of Sikeston and vicinity for the help they gave in making our recent Bike-a-Thon such a tremendous success.

We are grateful to you and the people at the Standard who helped us with our publicity. You were very willing to help in printing articles and publishing pictures during our campaign.

We wish to thank the following merchants who so graciously donated prizes or money: Britts, Homestead Distributing Co., Johnson's Tire and Tractor Co., Otasco's, Penney's, Stan's Carpet, Skate World, Sterlings, Western Auto, and to members of the Elks Club for their special donation.

Another big thanks goes to all the sponsors who donated very generously to the cause. Some of them were probably taken by surprise when the participants came to collect and the mileage exceeded their expectations.

Last but certainly not least we want to thank the participants, most of whom were 17 years of age and under. They all rode long and hard that day and you had better believe it was hard. They rode half of the time against a strong wind coming out of the southwest. Most of them succeeded in reaching the 40 mile mark and several rode 50 miles and more.

We collected just over $2500.00. This is twice as much as we collected last year. As you know this money is used for badly needed research plus helping to develop and maintain camps for diabetic children.

Many thanks again to everyone.

Sincerely,
Edna Sargent
(Mrs. John Sargent)

MAILBOX

Mr. Charles Blanton, III
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Mr. Blanton:

As chairman of the Sikeston Branch of the SMO Diabetic Association and in behalf of the other officers and members, I want to take this opportunity to thank the good people of Sikeston and vicinity for the help they gave in making our recent Bike-A-Thon such a tremendous success.

We are grateful to you and the people at the Standard who helped us with our publicity. You were very willing to help in printing articles and publishing pictures during our campaign.

We wish to thank the following merchants who so graciously donated prizes or money: Britts, Homestead Distributing Co., Johnson's Tire and Tractor Co., Otasco's, Penney's, Stan's Carpet, Skate World, Sterlings, Western Auto, and to members of the Elks Club for their special donation.

Another big thanks goes to all the sponsors who donated very generously to the cause. Some of them were probably taken by surprise when the participants came to collect and the mileage exceeded their expectations.

Last but certainly not least we want to thank the participants, most of whom were 17 years of age and under. They all rode long and hard that day and you had better believe it was hard. They rode half of the time against a strong wind coming out of the southwest. Most of them succeeded in reaching the 40 mile mark and several rode 50 miles and more.

We collected just over $2500.00. This is twice as much as we collected last year. As you know this money is used for badly needed research plus helping to develop and maintain camps for diabetic children.

Many thanks again to everyone.

Sincerely,
Edna Sargent
(Mrs. John Sargent)

What's the law?

The case of the trouble nun

By JACK STRAUSS,
LL.B.

Horace had a conscience, but it wasn't very quick. By the time it finally got around to telling Horace not to do something, it was usually too late.

After Horace broke a bottle over a friend's head, for example, his conscience told him he had done wrong and Horace dashed off to a nearby Catholic school, where he told a nun, who was his teacher, of his evil deed.

The nun, in turn, dashed off to the nearest police station to see what she could do to help Horace. Instead of being able to help him, however, the authorities insisted that she tell a grand jury everything Horace told her.

"I won't do it," insisted the harried nun. "Since a priest or minister can't be made to divulge the contents of a confession, neither can I. A nun is just as much a spiritual confidant as a priest or a minister."

"You're a teaching nun,"

responded the district attorney, "and you're not a priest or a minister. Consequently, no matter what your religious involvements may be with your students, you've got to tell all."

When the nun refused to do so, the district attorney took the matter to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the troubled nun to divulge what Horace had told her in confidence?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that state law does not afford a teaching nun the same privileges as a priest or minister in being able to refuse to divulge the contents of a confession made by a penitent. In fact, noted the judge, research into Catholic doctrine has failed to reveal any support for a nun to claim the privilege.

"Operation Sail" or "Tall Ships" is a unique tribute to America's Bicentennial from 36 nations and a rare opportunity for camera fans to record a magnificent spectacle. It starts July 4th with an incredible flotilla of 225 sailing ships parading into New York harbor and up the Hudson River.

As millions of on-the-spot viewers, ashore and afloat, occupy every vantage point along the route, the rest of the nation can watch the proceedings on television. The once-in-a-lifetime event can be photographed live or from the TV screen as a personal record of historic significance.

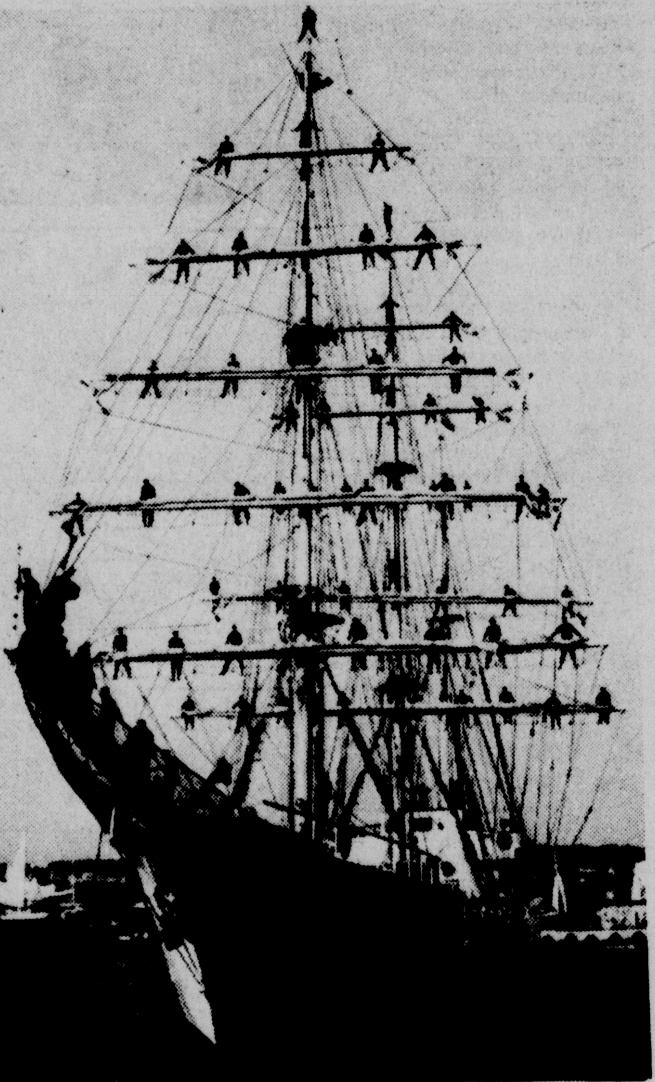

Highlighting the parade of vessels are 16 "tall ships," the world's most majestic full-rigged ships over 200 feet long. Used as training ships, they bring greetings to America from Denmark, Norway, South America, Italy, West Germany, Romania and Russia, among other countries. There are about 50 other large sailing ships between 100 and 200 feet long.

After a week of New York festivities, the fleet will split up to visit about 40 American ports. Some vessels will go north and head for the Great Lakes, the rest will turn south to reach the Gulf of Mexico and even the west coast. The celebrations will extend through October before the ships set their sails and head for home ports.

In recognition of the importance and impact of "Operation Sail," an impressive exhibition of photographs, artifacts, ship models, movies and slide shows about "Tall Ships" opened recently at the Kodak Photo Gallery in mid-Manhattan. Produced with the cooperation of the National Maritime Historical Society and with the help of nautical museums at Mystic, Conn., and Newport News, Va., the exhibit will remain on display through Aug. 7.

The gallery is open every day except Sunday, free to the public.

An 11-foot model of a typical sailing ship fills a street window of the gallery to set the theme of the show. Inside, the story of American sailing ships from 1776 to the present is shown through a variety of graphic presentations. In addition, several nautical props are provided to encourage picture taking by camera-toting fans. They include a wheelman's helm dating back to the 1800s, a six-foot wood-carved ship's figurehead and a binnacle from an unknown sailing vessel.

Visitors viewing one section of the gallery go past a simulated ship's hull with its curved beams, evoking an authentic visual response. Photographs and artifacts on display here show the tools and materials used to build the ships, how they were launched and their ultimate use to haul cargo, passengers, fish or to hunt whales.

Another feature of the Kodak gallery is a cut-away model of a 90-year-old merchant ship, Balclutha, which is permanently at anchor in San Francisco Bay. Visitors may find it interesting to match a series of color photographs of the ship's interiors with the model itself.

The gallery's lounge has been transformed into a model room to show how a den or office can be pleasingly enhanced with nautical decor. Among the props are ship models, ships' lamps, nautical ashtrays and a large number of marine prints. The photographs were taken by Jason Bailey, a Los Angeles photographer who is also an avid sailing enthusiast.

A finding has been made that the proposed Storm Sewer Installation Program has no significant effect on the environment. The reasons for this decision are as follows:

1. The Storm Sewer Installation Program will not create potential flooding problems in the ditches or downstream.

2. The improvement of the existing storm sewer system would lessen the accumulation of rain water, thus improving the stability of the environment, an relieve temporary flooding conditions. An Environmental Review Record has been made and is on file at the City Administrative Building, 215 North New Madrid Street, Sikeston, Missouri. The Environmental Review Record may be examined or copied at the above address between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

No further environmental review of this project is proposed to be conducted, and the City of Sikeston intends to make a request to the Department of Housing and Urban Development to release funds for the project.

Comments may be submitted to the City Administrative Building, City Manager's Office, 215 North New Madrid Street, Sikeston, Missouri, until August 2, 1976.

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

This notice relates to the Street Paving Program proposed as part of the Community Development Block Grant Program authorized as part of the Community Development Act of 1974.

A finding has been made that the proposed Street Paving Program has no significant effect on the environment. The reason for this decision is as follows:

The Street Paving Program will create only very minor adverse short-term effects, such as slowing of traffic on these streets during construction phase, it will however in the long-term, provide general property improvements to homeowners in the project area and will also increase their property value.

An Environmental Review Record has been made and is on file at the City Administrative Building, 215 North New Madrid Street, Sikeston, Missouri. The Environmental Review Record may be examined or copied at the above address between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

No further environmental review of this project is proposed to be conducted, and the City of Sikeston intends to make a request to the Department of Housing and Urban Development to release funds for the project.

Comments may be submitted to the City Administrative Building, City Manager's Office, 215 North New Madrid Street, Sikeston, Missouri, until August 2, 1976.

Who are they?

AP takes a look at convention '76 delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite four years of effort to encourage greater representation for women and minorities, the three thousand Democrats who will choose a presidential nominee this week are predominantly male, overwhelmingly white.

They also are far better educated and generally wealthier than Americans generally.

An Associated Press survey based on individual interviews with 93 per cent of the delegates shows a distinct falloff from 1972 in the number of female, under-30 and minority delegates.

These groups, however, are far better represented this year than they were at the party's 1968 national convention.

The AP survey pinpoints some states where these groups have fared extremely well — and others where to be a woman or of a racial minority seems to be an invitation not to go to the convention.

Participation of the under-represented groups soared in 1972 due to the imposition of a quota system. This year, affirmative action plans without quotas were used.

One of the few genuine contests of this convention is expected Thursday night when rules governing the selection of delegates to the 1980 convention will be considered, possibly including whether or not to return to a quota system.

These are the key findings from the AP study:

—Women hold 33 per cent of the delegate seats, off from the 40 per cent they won four years ago but 2½ times the 1968 figure. Census figures show women make up 51.2 per cent of the nation's population.

—Just under 11 per cent of delegates are black, double the amount in 1968 but off nearly one-third from 1972. About 11.5 per cent of the nation is black, but the proportion of blacks among Democratic voters is higher since blacks traditionally overwhelmingly identify themselves as Democrats. Another 4.5 of this year's delegates are Spanish-surnamed.

—Less than 14 per cent of this year's delegates are under 30 years of age. Four years ago, 22 per cent were in their teens or twenties, but in 1968, only 4 per cent were in that category. The average age of all delegates is 42.9 years.

—More than two of every five delegates have done post-graduate work and another two of that five attended or graduated from an undergraduate college. Only 2 per cent of the delegates have less than a high school education — but about one-third of all Americans didn't finish high school.

—The high educational level is reflected in income. Almost exactly half the delegates live in a household with earnings of more than $25,000 a year, an income reached by only 11.5 per cent of the public. Only 7 per cent of the delegates earn less than $10,000.

—More than one in six of every delegates is an elected public official, the largest occupational group. Lawyers and educators each comprise more than 10 per cent of the convention membership. Next come self-employed businesspersons and homemakers. The only other group with more than 200 members is union officials.

—These union officers help swell the proportion of delegates who are members of a labor union to 21 per cent, or almost 600 delegates.

Hidden among these over-all figures are sharp variances among some states.

In Michigan and Nevada, women are a majority of the delegation. Ten of the 16 Nevadans are female, and in the much larger Michigan group, women hold the edge 67 to 66. In Mississippi and Oregon, delegations are evenly divided between men and women.

Men, however, hold more than 80 per cent of the seats in five states: South Carolina, West Virginia, Alabama, Louisiana and Hawaii.

Delegations are all-white in five smaller states: Montana, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont. Among the ten largest states Massachusetts is the whitest in composition at 95 per cent.

Several southern states have sizable black representation, led by Mississippi at 33 per cent and Georgia at 26 per cent, with South Carolina at 26 per cent and Tennessee at 21.

Michigan has the highest black representation among the northern industrial states with 22 per cent.

The District of Columbia delegation is 50 per cent black, although this is proportionally lower than the D.C. population, which is more than three-quarters black.

Spanish-surnamed delegates hold 61 per cent of the seats in the New Mexico delegation. Their proportions in California, Arizona and Texas range from 13 to 17 per cent.

Michigan, high in female and black participation, tops the list in union members, with 52 per cent of its delegation members of a labor organization. Indiana and Alaska are 45 and 44 per cent union respectively. The youngest delegation is from South Dakota, whose members average 36 years of age. The Wisconsin group averages 38, and those from Vermont, Massachusetts, Ohio and Arizona are 39.

At the other end of the age spectrum are Hawaii and West Virginia, averaging 50.

Although the average delegate age is about the same as for the U.S. voting age population taken as a whole, the ages of delegates cluster far more heavily in the 35-50 range.

This results in decided under-representation for persons 18 to 24, and persons over 65. Each of those groups has less than one-third as many delegates as it would if the convention roster accurately represented U.S. age groupings.

The differences between the convention delegates and the general U.S. population are even more pronounced when it comes to household income. Just under 50 per cent of the delegates earning more than $25,000, more than four times as high as in the general population.

And while more than one-third of U.S. households earn less than $10,000, only 7 per cent of the delegation falls into that category.

its losses in the raid. But council sources said the United States could not get the nine votes necessary for adoption of such a resolution.

African and other Third World nations circulated a resolution condemning Israel and demanding compensation for Uganda. The Soviet Union and China were backing it, but the United States was certain to veto it if it came to a vote.

Council sources said they knew of no effort being made to bring the two sides together. They predicted that the debate would end with the rejection of both resolutions.

Israel at the opening of the debate Friday declared that its commando action was justified because Ugandan President Idi Amin collaborated fully with the Palestinian and West German hijackers holding the hostages. But nobody was preparing a resolution to censure Amin.

A dispatch from Tel Aviv said the former Israeli military attaché in Uganda, Col. Baruch Bar-Lev, reported Amin told him in a telephone conversation Friday that he has severed relations with Arab guerrilla groups because they have caused him "nothing but trouble."

Bar-Lev said Amin also told him that speaking "not as a politician but as a professional soldier, I must tell you the (commando) operation was very good. Your commandos are very good."

the viability of the fetus should be taken into consideration when determining whether or not the fetus is a person.

"It is our view that the fetus had to be entitled to maintain an action at the time the injury was sustained and not at some later time after there had been another development, that is, live birth," the judge wrote.

"And it should be obvious that an unborn fetus could not maintain an action and recover damages for personal injuries," he added.

The court noted that it was true "to some extent" that no recovery is permitted, then there is a wrong without a remedy.

"Of course, it would seem unnecessary to mention that the mother can recover for injuries she received at the time of the casualty which fatally injured the fetus," it added. "In such an action her recovery would include mental and physical suffering in connection with the miscarriage."

Hage is sentenced again

ST. LOUIS—A former Scott City man who was convicted 17 years ago of robbing the Bank of Advance while absent without leave from the Army at Ft. Campbell, Ky., has been sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary for violation of a bond default statute. The sentence is to run consecutive to a five-year sentence for interstate transport of a stolen car.

Robert Lee Hager, 35, was sentenced on the two charges in Federal Court in St. Louis Tuesday for the Nov. 29, 1971, auto theft.

Hager is presently serving a 15-year sentence in Florida on a manslaughter charge for the Aug. 14, 1975, murder of Howard Dubin, 32, after an argument over payment for narcotics. At the time of the arrest for the murder, Hager was using the alias of Robert Jansen. After his arrest he jumped bond and was not recaptured until Dec. 19, 1975 in Orlando.

FBI officials said Hager jumped bond in November 1971 and managed to elude authorities until he was charged with manslaughter in Florida.

He is also wanted in Cape Girardeau County for unlawful flight on a burglary charge stemming from a theft March 2, 1971 at Ralph Edwards Sportsweat, 334 Broadway.

Cape County Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Seier said that once Florida and the federal authorities finish with Hager, he intends to get him back and try him for burglary.

Chaffee hires new policeman

CHAFFEE — The hiring of a new city patrolman and repair of a levee on city-owned property occupied much of the business when the City Council met Tuesday night.

Dennis Prince is the city's new patrolman. He was hired on recommendation of the police board, which was also given permission by the council to formulate a set of rules and regulations for the police department.

A levee on city farm land that is currently leased has broken and water is running onto the property of A. W. Phegley, the council learned. A drain pile with a gate will be put in to close the ditch and hopefully alleviate the problem.

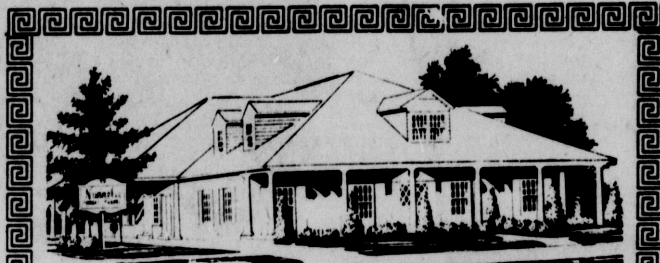

In other business the council:

— Voted to increase its contribution toward maintenance of the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation office in Scott City from $5 to $7.50.

— Voted not to loan the police department radar gun used in detecting speeders to any other city.

— Approved the appointment of Bob Delezine, Jerry Riley, E. Mike Pfefferkorn and George Allwood as a committee to work out details for purchasing a modular electronic invoicing and accounting system for the city.

— Announced no one will be allowed to wash off private parking lots using water from fire hydrants without permission of the city water superintendent.

Rape suspect to stand trial

NEW MADRID—A Fort Lauderdale, Fla., truck driver, charged with the rape of a 15-year-old New Madrid girl, has been bound over to stand trial in New Madrid County Circuit Court.

New Madrid authorities said the suspect, Franklin Ealy, 30, was ordered bound over July 7 after a preliminary hearing in the court of Magistrate John O. Bailey.

Ealy was arrested about 6:30 a.m. Monday by New Madrid city police and county sheriff's deputies after the victim walked to the county jail to report the incident. Authorities said they arrested Ealy in the home of the girl's parents.

The victim told authorities the rape took place at the Tip-tonville ferry landing east of Portageville Sunday night. A spokesman for the sheriff's office said the girl was left alone with the alleged attacker when her brother and his wife left the landing to obtain help in moving a stuck vehicle.

Who are they?

AP takes a look at convention '76 delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite four years of effort to encourage greater representation for women and minorities, the three thousand Democrats who will choose a presidential nominee this week are predominantly male, overwhelmingly white.

They also are far better educated and generally wealthier than Americans generally.

An Associated Press survey based on individual interviews with 93 per cent of the delegates shows a distinct falloff from 1972 in the number of female, under-30 and minority delegates.

These groups, however, are far better represented this year than they were at the party's 1968 national convention.

The AP survey pinpoints some states where these groups have fared extremely well — and others where to be a woman or of a racial minority seems to be an invitation not to go to the convention.

Participation of the under-represented groups soared in 1972 due to the imposition of a quota system. This year, affirmative action plans without quotas were used.

One of the few genuine contests of this convention is expected Thursday night when rules governing the selection of delegates to the 1980 convention will be considered, possibly including whether or not to return to a quota system.

These are the key findings from the AP study:

—Women hold 33 per cent of the delegate seats, off from the 40 per cent they won four years ago but 2½ times the 1968 figure. Census figures show women make up 51.2 per cent of the nation's population.

—Just under 11 per cent of delegates are black, double the amount in 1968 but off nearly one-third from 1972. About 11.5 per cent of the nation is black, but the proportion of blacks among Democratic voters is higher since blacks traditionally overwhelmingly identify themselves as Democrats. Another 4.5 of this year's delegates are Spanish-surnamed.

—Less than 14 per cent of this year's delegates are under 30 years of age. Four years ago, 22 per cent were in their teens or twenties, but in 1968, only 4 per cent were in that category. The average age of all delegates is 42.9 years.

—More than two of every five delegates have done post-graduate work and another two of that five attended or graduated from an undergraduate college. Only 2 per cent of the delegates have less than a high school education — but about one-third of all Americans didn't finish high school.

—The high educational level is reflected in income. Almost exactly half the delegates live in a household with earnings of more than $25,000 a year, an income reached by only 11.5 per cent of the public. Only 7 per cent of the delegates earn less than $10,000.

—More than one in six of every delegates is an elected public official, the largest occupational group. Lawyers and educators each comprise more than 10 per cent of the convention membership. Next come self-employed businesspersons and homemakers. The only other group with more than 200 members is union officials.

—These union officers help swell the proportion of delegates who are members of a labor union to 21 per cent, or almost 600 delegates.

Hidden among these over-all figures are sharp variances among some states.

In Michigan and Nevada, women are a majority of the delegation. Ten of the 16 Nevadans are female, and in the much larger Michigan group, women hold the edge 67 to 66. In Mississippi and Oregon, delegations are evenly divided between men and women.

Men, however, hold more than 80 per cent of the seats in five states: South Carolina, West Virginia, Alabama, Louisiana and Hawaii.

Delegations are all-white in five smaller states: Montana, New Hampshire, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont. Among the ten largest states Massachusetts is the whitest in composition at 95 per cent.

Several southern states have sizable black representation, led by Mississippi at 33 per cent and Georgia at 26 per cent, with South Carolina at 26 per cent and Tennessee at 21.

Michigan has the highest black representation among the northern industrial states with 22 per cent.

The District of Columbia delegation is 50 per cent black, although this is proportionally lower than the D.C. population, which is more than three-quarters black.

Spanish-surnamed delegates hold 61 per cent of the seats in the New Mexico delegation. Their proportions in California, Arizona and Texas range from 13 to 17 per cent.

Michigan, high in female and black participation, tops the list in union members, with 52 per cent of its delegation members of a labor organization. Indiana and Alaska are 45 and 44 per cent union respectively. The youngest delegation is from South Dakota, whose members average 36 years of age. The Wisconsin group averages 38, and those from Vermont, Massachusetts, Ohio and Arizona are 39.

At the other end of the age spectrum are Hawaii and West Virginia, averaging 50.

Although the average delegate age is about the same as for the U.S. voting age population taken as a whole, the ages of delegates cluster far more heavily in the 35-50 range.

This results in decided under-representation for persons 18 to 24, and persons over 65. Each of those groups has less than one-third as many delegates as it would if the convention roster accurately represented U.S. age groupings.

The differences between the convention delegates and the general U.S. population are even more pronounced when it comes to household income. Just under 50 per cent of the delegates earning more than $25,000, more than four times as high as in the general population.

And while more than one-third of U.S. households earn less than $10,000, only 7 per cent of the delegation falls into that category.

Hage is sentenced again

ST. LOUIS—A former Scott City man who was convicted 17 years ago of robbing the Bank of Advance while absent without leave from the Army at Ft. Campbell, Ky., has been sentenced to three years in the state penitentiary for violation of a bond default statute. The sentence is to run consecutive to a five-year sentence for interstate transport of a stolen car.

Robert Lee Hager, 35, was sentenced on the two charges in Federal Court in St. Louis Tuesday for the Nov. 29, 1971, auto theft.

Hager is presently serving a 15-year sentence in Florida on a manslaughter charge for the Aug. 14, 1975, murder of Howard Dubin, 32, after an argument over payment for narcotics. its losses in the raid. But council sources said the United States could not get the nine votes necessary for adoption of such a resolution.

African and other Third World nations circulated a resolution condemning Israel and demanding compensation for Uganda. The Soviet Union and China were backing it, but the United States was certain to veto it if it came to a vote.

Council sources said they knew of no effort being made to bring the two sides together. They predicted that the debate would end with the rejection of both resolutions.

Israel at the opening of the debate Friday declared that its commando action was justified because Ugandan President Idi Amin collaborated fully with the Palestinian and West German hijackers holding the hostages. But nobody was preparing a resolution to censure Amin.

A dispatch from Tel Aviv said the former Israeli military attaché in Uganda, Col. Baruch Bar-Lev, reported Amin told him in a telephone conversation Friday that he has severed relations with Arab guerrilla groups because they have caused him "nothing but trouble."

Bar-Lev said Amin also told him that speaking "not as a politician but as a professional soldier, I must tell you the (commando) operation was very good. Your commandos are very good."

the viability of the fetus should be taken into consideration when determining whether or not the fetus is a person.

"It is our view that the fetus had to be entitled to maintain an action at the time the injury was sustained and not at some later time after there had been another development, that is, live birth," the judge wrote. "And it should be obvious that an unborn fetus could not maintain an action and recover damages for personal injuries," he added.

The court noted that it was true "to some extent" that if no recovery is permitted, then there is a wrong without a remedy.

"Of course, it would seem unnecessary to mention that the mother can recover for injuries she received at the time of the casualty which fatally injured the fetus," it added. "In such an action her recovery would include mental and physical suffering in connection with the miscarriage."

2 are injured in accidents

Two persons were injured in two separate traffic accidents Saturday, according to the highway patrol.

In an accident at 11:55 p.m. Saturday on Highway 61, eight miles north of Sikeston in Scott County, Faye Marie Blisset, 19, of Oran Route One, received minor injuries and was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

The accident occurred when the driver of the northbound car went to sleep, ran off the road and overturned.

The other accident occurred at 10:30 p.m. Saturday on Route E, five miles south of Doniphan when a southbound pickup truck driven by Claudetta I. Littrell, 25, of Doniphan, ran over the legs of a pedestrian, Gary W. Parrish, 20, of Wichita, Kansas, who was lying on the road.

Parrish received moderate injuries and was taken to the Ripley County Hospital.
